The Current Situation in Sindh

The people of Sindh continue to suffer numerous rights violations at the hands of the Pakistani state. This includes enforced disappearances and extrajudicial killings of Sindhi political activists, the state-sponsored rise in religious extremism, persecution of religious minorities, misappropriation of natural resources, forced eviction and economic hardship due to large-scale infrastructure projects without consultation, and the complete denial of rights and opportunities for social, economic, cultural and political development. The state's actions have led to systematic discrimination, hostility, and the persecution of indigenous Sindhi people. Currently, the Sindhi people are facing the following rights violations:

Extrajudicial Killings and Enforced Disappearances of Sindhi Activists

Enforced disappearances and extrajudicial killings of political and human rights activists are the norm in Pakistan, where security agencies operate with impunity. Released victims are detained for various lengths, undergoing physical and psychological trauma, while others are killed in custody. By August 2021, the Federal Commission for the Recovery and Inquiry of Enforced Disappearances in Pakistan received 8,122 reports of enforced disappearances. Eyewitnesses to these disappearances indicate that most perpetrators are state-sponsored security personnel, i.e., rangers, police, and intelligence agencies. Despite domestic and international pressure, the Commission on Enforced Disappearances remains underfunded and lacks the authority to investigate the hundreds of reported cases properly. While the Criminal Laws Amendment Bill 2021 seeks stricter laws and better avenues of justice for victims, the state is actively undermining these efforts.

Massive Infrastructure Projects without Consultation or Consideration

Pakistan's continued dedication to massive infrastructure projects through the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor (CPEC) fuels inequity within Sindh. Despite public outcries in Sindh, state agents continue to move forward or support with damn projects. These initiatives will result in the loss of traditional lands, the usurpation, the degradation of natural resources, and the loss of livelihoods. Historical mismanagement of such infrastructure projects and the lack of consideration given to how these projects will negatively impact local populations put the people of Sindh in a disadvantaged and dangerous position.

Forced Conversions and Kidnappings of Sindhi Hindus

Sindhi Hindus face targeted discrimination and violence, including. This pervasive violence has resulted in the exodus of the Hindu population out of Pakistan. Numerous cases have been reported of Hindu girls, the majority of whom were under 16, being forcibly abducted and converted. In most instances, the girls were then forcibly married off or kept in the custody of their kidnappers with little to no recourse for the girls or their families. Families who reported the kidnappings were often the targets of violence.

Spread of Religious Extremism in Sindh

Islamic militarism across Pakistan is increasing, and Sindh continues to experience unprecedented violence against non-Muslim and non-Sunni sects of Muslims. Underage religious minority girls are the targets of kidnappings and forced conversions, as textbooks and school curriculums teach intolerance and bigotry, further aggravating tensions between these groups. Several incidents of destruction and burning of Christian, Hindu, Sikh, and Ahmadi places of worship have been reported.

Misappropriation of Sindh's Natural Resources

Sindh remains one of the most resource-rich states of Pakistan, with some of the world's largest oil and gas reserves. These resources contribute to 69% of Pakistan's revenue, and Sindh has the only seaport in the country. Sindh has 71% of the gas fields in Pakistan, 62% of the oil of Pakistan, and one of the largest coal deposits in the world and 99% of Pakistan's total coal reserves (worth an estimated $23 trillion). However, Sindh only receives 11% of federal funding, and 60% of Sindhis live below the poverty line. 50% of the population has diseases from inadequate sanitation and a lack of health facilities and proper infrastructure. More than 60% of Sindhis do not have access to drinkable water. The Federal government relies on Sindh's resources. Still, it then appropriates funding unequally and inequitably in favor of Punjab, perpetuating Sindh's status as one of the poorest provinces in the country despite its contributions.

A Message from the Chair

This past year, the World Sindhi Congress (WSC) dedicated its efforts towards advocacy, outreach, and humanitarian aid. Globally, we organized and participated in numerous protests, petitions, fundraisers, and seminars. Our primary focus was to advocate and raise awareness about the human rights violations in Sindh. In addition, our media presence was significantly expanded, facilitating improved communication with members and advocates. This included numerous statements, press releases, and interviews.

Sindh's prevailing scenario is deeply concerning. Marked by continuous human rights violations, it's an environment riddled with fear, oppression, enforced disappearances, and unchecked extrajudicial killings. Indigenous Sindhi communities suffer the brunt of these abuses, facing the infringement on their lands, resource misappropriation, and loss of livelihoods. Religious extremism is rising, compelling Sindhi Hindus and other religious minorities to flee the province. Abductions and forced conversions of Hindu girls and women remain pressing issues.

The mismanagement of natural resources, coupled with the impacts of manmade climate change, led to a significant humanitarian crisis this year. Starting in June, Pakistan experienced severe monsoon rains, which escalated into high floods, causing widespread destruction. Sindh bore the heaviest brunt: over 1.823 million houses were damaged, with 742,695 destroyed; 414,869 livestock were lost, and 3,773,707 crops were devastated. This disaster impacted over 11 million people in Sindh, causing disruptions in education and healthcare and leading to massive displacements.

In 2022, WSC representatives met with the United Nations Working Group on Enforced and Involuntary Disappearances (WGEID) to address the issue of disappearances in Sindh. We also attended virtual sessions at the United Nations on widespread human rights abuses in the region. Collaborating with organizations such as AAPG and Voice for Sindhi Missing Persons, we amplified human rights issues within the international community. Seminars were a primary medium, allowing the World Sindhi Congress to educate and engage our community members.

The progress made this year is a testament to the commitment of our members and fellow human rights defenders. We sincerely appreciate and honor their relentless efforts. The World Sindhi Congress extends its gratitude to all human rights advocates, especially those who assisted during the flood crisis.

As Pakistan's democracy continues to be stifled and human rights issues persist, the resulting instability presents a significant regional security threat. WSC remains committed to amplifying our advocacy efforts in the upcoming year. We aim to strengthen our outreach in collaboration with oppressed nations within Pakistan and global non-governmental organizations. With your continued support, we aspire to work even more closely with the United Nations and various international governments to champion human rights in Sindh.
